Flight And Other Stories (Western Literature Series) Jose Skinner

A rich collection of short stories that explore the broad range of Hispanic-American experience in the West. In this rich group of stories, the author explores many themes. Archangela's Place features a wonderful Mexican character who weaves herself permanently into the lives of an Anglo family-with enduring results. Flight tackles racial misunderstanding between an urban African-American and a rural Chicano woodcutter. Eloy and Every Head's a World are coming-of-age stories that illustrate, in various degrees of tragedy and comedy, the complexities faced by Hispanic-American youth. Careful is an ironic and humorous story of an encounter between two gay teenagers, one Hispanic and one Anglo, that is admirably honest and compelling in its sensuality. Among the rest are two pure romances, Pickup, which is like a tormented country-western song, and Spring, a witty story of love unrequited for forty years until, finally, the elderly lovers can openly and tenderly embrace in a passionate and charming conclusion. The stories in this collection show a wide range of compassion and understanding of the often confusing rules of love in a multicultural world.
